Monthly Plant-Sitter Card

Leave it on the counter. Help your sitter win the week.

GETTING STARTED

The kindest gift you can give a friend watering your plants is not gratitude — it is instructions. This single-page card tells them which plants need what, when the watering can lives, and the one sentence that saves entire collections: when in doubt, skip the watering. Tuck it under a cup on the kitchen counter and everyone relaxes.

PRINT IT RIGHT

- US Letter paper, portrait, 100 % scale (“Actual size”, never “Fit to page”).
- Fill it in before you leave — not from the airport, from the hallway, where all the plants are.
- Leave it where the plants are, not where the return key is.

WHAT YOUR SITTER ACTUALLY NEEDS

- A go/no-go test: check the soil two knuckles deep; damp means skip.
- Where the watering can and anything fiddly live (misters, saucers, the trick door).
- One contact number for the one plant that matters most.

> Tip: Group the thirstiest plants in one warm, bright spot before you go. One corner of care replaces five trips down the hall — and the card then says “water the corner,” which any overbooked friend can manage.

Plant-Sitter Card

While away from: _____ to _____ — written with love by a slightly bossy plant person.

THE CREW AND THEIR NEEDS

Plant	Where it lives	What it wants	Worry level (circle)
			low · med · high
			low · med · high
			low · med · high
			low · med · high
			low · med · high
			low · med · high
			low · med · high
			low · med · high

HOUSE NOTES FOR THE SITTER

The watering can lives: _____

Mister / plant food lives: _____

Golden rule: stick a finger two knuckles into the soil — damp means skip, dry means a thorough drink until water leaves the drainage hole. When in doubt, skip the watering. Underwatered plants forgive; overwatered ones do not.

IF SOMETHING LOOKS WRONG

A droopy leaf after a hot day is normal theater. Anything odd: take a photo, send it to me — _____

Plant emergency number:

_____

Thank you for sitting with them. They will pretend they do not need you — that is a plant thing.