Watering Rotation Sheet

One steady rhythm, and every plant shows up fed.

GETTING STARTED

Watering dies not from neglect but from chaos — one plant gets double helpings, another waits three weeks. This sheet gives you a soft rotation: water a few plants a day, mark the box, and the whole collection stays even without one heroic weekend marathon.

PRINT IT RIGHT

- US Letter paper, portrait, 100 % scale (“Actual size”, never “Fit to page”).
- Print one per month and clip it to a fridge, a corkboard, or the watering can.
- Keep a pencil with it — a sheet you cannot reach while holding the can is a sheet that goes unfilled.

HOW THE ROTATION WORKS

- Write each thirsty plant in a row, with its target day (Monday for the ferns, and so on).
- On the way past, check the soil with a finger before pouring — damp soil means skip.
- When you water, tick Done and pencil in the date. When a row is full, print a fresh sheet.

> Tip: Under 10 plants? Give them one shared watering day and use the Done column as a roll call. Over 20? Split the herd — Mon/Wed group A, Tue/Fri group B — and this sheet carries it.

Watering Rotation Sheet

Month of: _____ Always check the soil before you pour.

THE THREE-FINGER RULE

Push a finger two knuckles into the soil. Bone dry — water thoroughly until it drains. Evenly damp — skip, check again tomorrow. Soggy days after watering — the pot may be rootbound or the drainage is clogged; turn the pot and loosen the saucer.

GROUP RHYTHM

◯ Mon ◯ Tue ◯ Wed ◯ Thu ◯ Fri — my watering days: _____

THIS MONTH'S ROTATION

#	Plant	Water day	Drains?	Dates watered (write all four weeks)	Done	Happy / pouty
1			☐		☐
2			☐		☐
3			☐		☐
4			☐		☐
5			☐		☐
6			☐		☐
7			☐		☐
8			☐		☐
9			☐		☐
10			☐		☐
11			☐		☐
12			☐		☐
13			☐		☐
14			☐		☐
15			☐		☐
16			☐		☐

Never sure? Underwatering beats overwatering every time — a thirsty plant perks up in an afternoon, a waterlogged one takes weeks.